A historic downtown gem will soon reach a new level of distinction. In 2017, the first five floors of this 16-story architectural classic are being transformed into a creative office space unlike anything else in Portland.
Square feet of available office space

92,000

Oversized floor plates with towering ceiling heights will be bathed in natural light.

Flexible workspaces will allow innovative companies to evolve their cultures. Renovations will preserve the architectural greatness of the past while achieving full LEED certification for the future.
40,000 square foot floorplates
Fully customizable open floorplates will allow users to strategically design for how they work today while planning for future growth.
Four MAX Light Rail lines intersect right in front of the building. Within a mile are hundreds of restaurants, cafes, and breweries, along with Portland’s most popular food truck gatherings. New Pine Street Market, a bustling food hall with gourmet vendors, is just blocks away.

There is no better location in Portland. The Meier & Frank building spans a full city block across from the northeast corner of Pioneer Square, a downtown hub known affectionately as Portland's “living room.”
